

To Whom It May Concern:

This is a written testimonial of the high quality and outstanding performance of Perma-Guard. Although I am not a farmer or a large animal owner, I have had tremendous success using Perma-Guard on a flea-infested puppy.

In August of 2000, my wife, my son and I were on our way to the Humane Society (Animal Shelter) to look at the puppies. A lady approached me in the parking lot and gave me a 6 to 8 week old puppy that she had found wandering-around. Since I was outside and had not yet gone inside the Shelter to shop for my pup, I "adopted" this one on the spot. I figured I'd take this puppy inside with us while we looked around at the other animals. While walking to the door, I felt 'things' crawling on me. The puppy was grotesquely infested with fleas, and soon I was too.

After I mentioned the flea dilemma to the people at the shelter, they offered a flea shampoo and a sink to bathe the puppy in. Everyone in the place took one look at the amount of fleas and said the puppy would not live long since that sort of flea infestation usually meant the animal was dying. That did not make feel too comfortable, since I had fleas crawling on me too!

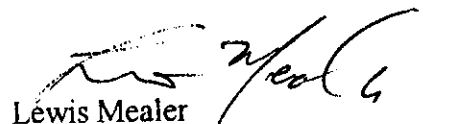

I was almost ready to leave the puppy with them and try to figure how to get the fleas out of my own hair after I could get home to a hot shower. Just about then, Frank Mead walked through the animal-washing area doorway. He took one look at the puppy and told me what it needed. He suggested Perma-Guard, a product that is sold by the E'SS-E Products Company. I found out he was a distributor for the product and figured it was just another useless gimmick animal health product. He asked me if I'd allow him to apply Perma-Guard to my new puppy, and since I was about to leave the puppy with the Humane Society, I figured it might be worth it. I have never been so wrong with my initial judgment on a product!

We took the infested puppy outside of the Lakeside Animal Shelter and Frank began to apply the powder. He used the powder directly because the puppy was already wet and so badly infested. With the entire shelter staff gathered around, we literally witnessed the fleas falling off dead. One lady left cause it was too disgusting for her. There had to of been at least a full measuring cup of dead fleas lying around that puppy. Perma-Guard dehydrated the fleas and killed them instantly. The puppy stopped being listless and sickly and immediately became a regular friendly little dog. She was actually wagging her tail.

Although I hate to admit it, I took a half-handful of Perma-Guard and rubbed it through my own hair. I was thinking on the way home that maybe I was imagining the itching on my scalp and body, but when I showered, I found quite a few dead fleas.

Before I left the shelter, Frank gave me more of the Perma-Guard and some Basic-H with the instructions for washing the puppy in the following weeks. We did that and have not seen a single flea since. There are no ticks around our other dogs, since we washed them and the area they sleep in too. This is one natural product that really works.
